Villa 174

Shoe designer Srdjan Prodanovic, the creative mind behind the brand Burakyan, had the idea of Villa No. 174; a new and unconventional hotel/boutique with the ambitious goal of uniting luxury stays and art events. The villa was opened on the Santa Teresa hill, the bohemian and culturally thriving neighborhood of the Brazilian metropolis of Rio de Janeiro. This ancient noble residence is surrounded by a luxurious tropical garden and offers four spaces by the top-notch esthetic quality. Pillars decorated with green plant life motifs stand out at the center of the white Pool suite facing the swimming pool, while art deco reminiscences and '60s nostalgia create the atmosphere for the other three suites. Majestic contemporary paintings created especially for the occasion by Bosnian artist Radmila Djapic Jovandic hang from the walls representing the common thread in a constantly evolving Hotel: the external wall is in fact left to the artistic inspiration of guest/taggers, the elegant hall hosts art installations, while the hallways and terraces stand out for the striking chromatic variations. Villa No. 174 also has a mascot, a colorful parakeet named Nino, and thanks to his many travels, the owner will always keep guests up to date about the latest news from the gurus of the fashion world.
